HAGGONFIELDS' WAY

Haggonfields

Introduction

At Haggonfields we teach a Relationships and Behaviour Strategy that sets out expectations for pupils to follow through the learning day and beyond. We want to support our pupils to have a 'toolbox' of deep rooted principles that allows all to be responsible and respectable citizens.

School Vision

Haggonfields Primary School Vision

Believe Aspire Excel

At Haggonfields Primary School we aim to ensure that all of our children become confident, independent learners with an enthusiasm for acquiring knowledge. Children are supported to develop and maintain positive relationships and to respect and value both themselves and others. We deliver an exciting and innovative curriculum that engages and develops the whole person. We ensure that the curriculum and resources are flexible, adaptable and relevant for the needs of all learners in an evolving world and encourages individuals' interests and aptitudes to flourish.

Believe in yourself, everything is possible.

Aspire to be the best you can be.

Excel in all that you do.

Teaching the Relationships and Behaviour Strategy (see also Relationships and Behaviour Policy)

At Haggonfields we teach English and Maths discretely and a wider Knowledge Curriculum. This learning embeds the Relationships and Behaviour Strategy. Pupils learn the expectations of the strategy throughout their journey at Haggonfields so that it becomes embedded. At the start of each term, the Relationships and Behaviour Strategy is revisited with pupils and reference is made to expectations on a daily basis.

As with all teaching regular reviewing is essential to embedding. The principles of daily, weekly, monthly review are taken from Tom Sherrington's interpretation of Rosenshine's 'Principles of Instruction' (Sherrington's Strand 1 - Reviewing Material). Teachers will also model and scaffold these behaviours (Sherrington's Strand 3 - Sequencing concepts and modelling) ensuring pupils have many opportunities to practise.

Expectations will be explicit and positive reinforcement to support a culture of success. This is in line with the school's staff use of PACE training in practice

PACE stands for:

Playfulness

Use a light-hearted, reassuring tone - similar to parent-infant interactions - to create an atmosphere of safety and reassurance where no one feels judged, and your child can cope with positive feelings.

Acceptance

Acceptance is about actively communicating that you accept the feelings, thoughts and internal struggles underneath the child's outward behaviour. It is not about accepting the behaviour but helping teach the child not to feel ashamed of their inner turmoil.

Curiosity

Curiosity, without judgement, is how we help children become aware of their inner life. It's about wondering out loud without necessarily expecting an answer in return. Phrases like "I wonder if..." will help the child to name their thoughts and emotions.

Empathy

Feeling a child's sadness or distress and being emotionally available to them during times of difficulty shows the child that they are not alone and that the adult is strong enough to support them.

Strategy Content

Rewards and sanctions are decided taking pupil's staff and SLT voice into consideration;
We do not have class charters, individual class rules or individual behaviour systems.
There are three strands of relationships and behaviour at Haggonfields:
